Backstory

Hans Christian Andersen was a Danish author of heart-wrenching fairy tales for children.

Born on April 2, 1805 in Odense, Denmark, Andersen drew upon his life to pen stories that stood apart from cliched tales about princes and princesses. His classic "The Little Match Girl" was inspired by his mother who was forced to beg in her childhood. "The Ugly Duckling" and "The Little Mermaid" captured Andersen's yearning for a better life and spread the message of self-love and acceptance. Andersen's stories became famous for their sensitivity, complex subjects and tragic endings.

Word of the day

Globalisation

Globalisation is the process where the entire world has become interconnected through trade and cultural exchange. It has connected the people across the globe through various facets, ranging from economy, politics to entertainment. In India, globalisation gained momentum in the early 1990s. Globalisation focusses on international trade with minimal obstruction caused by national borders and policies. Politics, national policies and laws create an impact globally. Globalisation also impacts culture, which becomes homogeneous. The entire world becomes one global village under this phenomenon.
